Old and New Blood Represented at Gathering Yesterday

FLAG PRESENTATION

Stirring Address of Samuel G Brent On Valor of Southern Soldiers and Their Principles

Youth and old age—the time worn gray of the veterans and the freshly pressed gray of the cadet underneath both beating hearts full of love and memory for the past and loyal to the present —bright-eyed young girls in newly starched pinafores and wearing across their breast the scarlet symbol of patriotism and tottering women, their lean forms draped in black and their eyes dimmed with a thousand sorrows since the days of '61—the soul stiring strains of "Dixie" and the appealing tones of "My County 'Tis of Thee"—the stars and bars of the Confederacy and the stars and stripes of a United Country—these and a hundred other contrasts appleaded to the imagination, filled the heart with enthusiasm and love of country and brought tears to the eyes of the great concourse of people who gathered at the corner of Washington and Prince streets yesterday afternoon.

It was the occasion of the annual celebration of the departure of the Alexandria companies to the front in the War Between the States--a day sacred forever in the annals of this community to the bravery and devotion of its soldier lads who went forth to fight in defense of their native state—a day now dedicated to their memory when flowers are strewn on the mounds which cover their last resting place and their valor is told in burning words of oratory.

And yesterday was no exception. It was the fifth-fifth anniversary of their departure and as the score or more survivors, with haltering steps bearing aloft the battle stained flag, marched through the crowded streets from their hall to the monument, they were given hearty applause.

Previous to the arrival of the veterans on the scene there were several interesting events. At half past five the two companies of cadets of the Alexandria High School, headed by the gorgeously costumed band of the American Indian Guards, marched from the high school lot to Washington street. They were drawn up facing the Young People's Building where the presentation of a handsome silk American flag took place. The flag, a gift from the officers of the Masonic bodies of Alexandria, was presented by H. Noel Garner, commander of the Sons of the Veterans. In well chosen words he referred to the history of Alexandria during the past 300 years, especially the part taken by its people in the wars that have occurred, and said that he hoped we would continue at peace during these perilous times. He said that he wished the cadet corps would take as its motto "In God we trust" and that the flag would ever wave over the land of the brave.

Staff Captain Conrad Johnson, principal of the high school, responded in appropriate terms, the color guard was brought up and took possession of the starry banner, the cadets presented arms and F. L. Plitt, played "The Star Spangled Banner," as a cornet solo.

The cadets marched away and their place in front of the church was taken a few minutes later by a company of kaiki-clad boy scouts who acted as the escort of the Confederate choir, composed of fifty or more girls dressed in white and having across their breasts a red sash, Heading this detachment was Miss Blanche Rotchford, the directress and Miss Dora Varney, the cornetist. The children marched to the portico of the colonial residence of Dr. Hugh McGuire, where they made a pretty picture as they sang the patriotic hymns of the past and the present.

A stand draped in colonial colors and red, white and blue, had been erected at the intersection of Washington and Prince street facing the statute to the Lost Cause and from this stand the exercises were held. Commander William A. Smoot, presided and the invocation was delivered by the Rev. John W. Duffey, D. D. chaplain of the camp. Commander Smoot, introduced the orator of the day, Samuel G. Brent commonwealth attorney of Alexandria and a son of the late Major George W. Brent, a brilliant Confederate soldier.

Mr. Brent made an eloquent and impassioned address in which he told of the glories of the past, the bravery of the Confederate soldier, the veneration in which he was held by the people of Alexandria, winding up his remarks with a plea for world peace. It was a speech that was worthy of the occasion and worthy of Mr. Brent who is regarded as one of Virginia's most gifted speakers. In part he said:

In 1861 when war's loud tocsin called our fathers to arms to fight in a just and sacred cause, they left their homes, their wives, their children, their all, to defend the principles in which they believed. They shouldered their muskets, placed their knapsacks upon their backs, and for four long, weary years, they stood the fatigue of the march, suffered the trials of the camp and faced the dangers of battle without a murmur or complaint.

The rank and file of the Confederate Army was composed of our best people, many of whom had been brought up in the lap of luxury, unaccustomed to hardships of any kind; But these men made the most courageous soldiers the world has ever seen—no page in the history of any country contains or records more splendid valor than that displayed by the Southern soldier upon the march, in the camp, or in the forefront of the battle. The brave deeds of the Confederate soldiers were due to the fact that each soldier, whether rich or poor, of high or low estate, felt that he was fighting for a principle that had been imbued in him from his birth. He fought with that spirit which animated and stimulated our Fathers of the Revolution; he fought for that principle which is engrafted in the Declaration of Independence, that "All men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

In this conflict the City of Alexandria furnished her quota of men to the Confederate cause, whilst her women remained at home and suffered many privations for its good. In your midst to-day, we find still surviving their comrades, and paying a tribute to their memory, such men as Colonel William A. Smoot, George William Ramsay, and John M. Johnson. If any of you wish to know the suffering and privations of the Confederate soldier, and how patiently and how heroically he bore them, ask either one of these distinguished and gallant men, and they will tell you that the Confederate soldier, without food, without clothing, rushed into the conflict and fighting for principle, imperiled all in the sacred cause of right.

The companies which were formed, organized and equipped in the city of Alexandria, were known as the Alexandria Rifles, Captain Morton Marye; Mount Vernon Guard, Captain S. H. DeVaughan; Old Dominion Rifles, Captain Arthur Herbert; Emmett Guards, Captain J. E. Towson; O' Connell Guards, Captain S. W. Prestman, and Alexandria Battery, Captain Delaware Kemper.

These companies formed a part of the Seventeenth Virginia Regiment, which was known as the "Alexandria Regiment." The Governor assigned the following officers to command this regiment: Colonel M. D. Corse, Lieutenant Colonel William Mumford, and Major George W. Brent.

We owe much to the noble woman of the South for her devotion to the Confederate cause, and we should always show an appreciation of the service which she rendered in behalf of the Confederacy. She inspired the men to the performance of their duty; in times of need and danger she responded willingly to their call. She was ever ready to sacrifice everything that she possessed on earth or expected to have, in defense of her native land. She sorrowfully but willingly parted with her husband, son and brother, and very often, all three, in order that they might offer up their lives in defense of the principles in which she believed. I have heard it said that a woman in Georgia received a message that she had three sons killed in battle, and whilst weeping for them, she exclaimed: "I would that I had a thousand sons to give for the cause!" It was such devotion as this that encouraged the men of the South in the long and memorable struggle.

We must not forget that at this time there is a great conflict raging in the greater part of the civilized

GERMANS BACK IN DOUANMONT

Fort Retaken From French by Series of Furious Attacks

30,000 SLAUGHTERED

French Frustrate Attempts at Flanking in Cailette Wood and Inflict Heavy Losses

Berlin, May 26.—The giant German nut-cracker is closing in upon Verdun in the bloodiest fighting in all history. Thirty thousand men have fallen in the last seventy-two hours in the underground caverns around Fort Douaumont without changing the battle lines in the slightest.

The right jaw has advanced on a front of three miles in the last seventy-two hours of the mad struggle northwest of the fortress.

Hill 304, cornerstone of the French outer defense west of the Meuse, is now held jointly by Germans and French. Further slight advances for the Germans in the ravines on either side will force its surrender to the right wing of the German army that occupied Cumieres village Tuesday night..

The left jaw of the crown prince's great fighting machine, bent back slightly under the most terrific blow struck by the French since the Verdun struggle began, has reconquered entirely positions temporarily surrendered to the French.

Authoritative denial was made here today of French claims that General Nivelle's forces even temporarily reoccupied the ruins of Fort Douaumont.

In the most desperate hand-to-hand struggle of the war, a French force did succeed in capturing a redoubt and ruined works connected with the fort. The only French detachment that penetrated the ruins of the fort itself was completely wiped out, not a single survivor escaping. .

Strewn about the southern and western approaches to the ruined fort are countless dead and wounded. Since the French attack began Sunday night the fury of the battle has not waned, but has grown more intense, and there has been no chance to reach the dying.

Paris, May 25—The Germans have reoccupied Ford Douaumont, while the French hold the immediate approach to that position.

This announcement is made in the official communication issued by the French War Office, which says that two new divisions of Bavarians effected the recapture after a series of furious attacks.

The statement says: in the Champagne district the Germans, by the use of gas, endeavored to occupy our lines at a point west of the Navarin farm. Our curtain of fire threw the enemy back to his trenches.

"On the left bank of the river Meuse the Germans undertook Tuesday night a powerful offensive action east of Dead Man Hill. After hand to hand fighting the enemy penetrated, at the cost of important sacrifices, into the village of Cumieres as well as into one of our trenches immediately west of this point.

"On the right bank of the river Meuse there have been preparations on the part of the artillery and successive attacks of great violence. In the region of Haudremont and at Douaumont in spite of ferocious assaults, the enemy has been successful in securing a footing in only a small part of the trench east of the fort. This has been accomplished without counting the cost in human lives. All endeavors against our positions west of the fort and upon the fort itself have been checked by our fire."

Berlin, May 25—The capture by Thurigian troops of the village of Cumieres, east of Dead Man Hill on the Verdun front, is announced by the War Office. The Village was taken by storm. So far more than 300 prisoners, including eight officers, have been taken by the Germans in this operation.

BAILEY IN TEXAS POLITICS

Successful in What Friends Regard As Opening Fight of Re-Entry into Arena

San Antonio Texas, May 25—Former Senator Joseph W. Bailey was successful yesterday in what his friends regard as the opening fight of his re-entry into active politics, when, after a spirit contest, the Democratic State Convention here adopted a program advocated by him, declaring against Federal prohibition and woman suffrage. The platform indorsed the national and State administrations and instructed the Texas delegation to vote for the renomination of President Wilson and Vice-President Marshall.

The convention, which adjourned last night, also elected Judge William J. Poindexter, of Cleburne, as national committeeman, and named eight delegates-at-large to the convention, each of whom will have half a vote.

BLACKHAND CAUGHT.

When John S. Covington, wealthy resident of Culpeper, received an anonymous letter last week demanding $700 under penalty of instant death, he turned the letter over to Postmaster James W. Green, who at once communicated with the postal authorities in Washington. The threatening letter was written in laboriously printed characters. In it Mr. Covington was commanded to place the money under a designated plank in the yard of the Episcopal Church in Remington, and to leave that vicinity immediately, or he would be shot, as a gang of men would be awaiting him. Secret Service men were sent to Remington, where the letter had been mailed, and found, upon investigation, that Charles Bowen, a merchant, also had received a similar letter. A package was put in the place directed, which then was watched, and S. A. Douglas, who the officers say, came for it, was placed under arrest.

AUSTRIANS USE GERMAN METHOD

Artillery Clears Path for Infantry to Storm Positions

2,000 GUNS ARE IN USE

Hail of Shells Has Changed Outlines Of Mountain Crests—Desperate Fighting

Rome, May 25—The correspondent of the Corriere Della Sera at Asiago sends the following dispatch:

"The Trentino drive of the Austrians is an exact replica of the Germans' Verdun offensive. Since Monday, May 15, a hail of shells of every caliber has crashed on the Italian lines.

"Two thousand guns on a front of 40 kilometres have bombarded the gates of Italy in order to open a passage for the Austrian troops. In the Italian advance trenches resistance seemed impossible the positions being wrecked and destroyed, yet the Italians soldiers were firmer than rock.

"There are mountain crests and walls of rock which under the fire of the Austrians 305s and 385s have changed their outlines. The Austrians mounted one 420 millimetre gun, between Asiago and Costalta, another on the Folgaria Plateau and a third at Rovereto. Side by side are many 305s.

Like the Germans, the Austrians launched attacks only when they were sure the occupants of the trenches were either dead or stupefied.

"On the night of Sunday and Monday three Austrian deserters warned the Italians that on Monday evening an attack would be launched. On Monday morning an artillery bombardment began from Rovereto to Val Sugana. Simultaneously many aeroplanes appeared over the Italian positions and regulated the fire of the 380-millimetre guns.

"The bombardment was particularly intense in the Lagarina Valley and on the Col. Santo Plateau. Sections of the Italian advanced trenches were completely destroyed.

"Early in the afternoon the Austrian infantry emerged from their trenches attacking simultaneously on the whole line from the Adige to the Sugana Valley in deep masses.

"The Italian machine guns mowed them down. The snow covered slopes of Zugna Torta were literally covered with dead.

"After sustaining the 12 hours' bombardment the Alpine troops repelled five attacks with the bayonet.

"The Austrians pushed on, regardless of their losses, while no reinforcements could be sent to the Italian because of the curtain of fire which the Austrian guns kept up against the Italian second lines.

"At the same time an avalanche of fire fell on the plateau between Milegna and Soglio Daspa, which is 1,900 feet high. Here the Austrians were caught between the fire of the Italian artillery and that of their own and entire regiments were massacred.

"The Italians descended inch by inch to the border, while hundreds of dead rolled down the slopes into the valleys, being buried in the snow."

NO PEACE AT PRESENT

Sir Edward Grey Replies to Liberal Member's Attack

London, May 25—In an impromptu speech in the house of commons last night on the question of peace, unexpectedly raised by Arthur Ponsonby, liberal member for Stirling, Scotland, in a strong address attacking the government for allowing diplomatic etiquette to stand in the way of possible peace pourparlers, Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, set aside all ideas that peace negotiations were possible at the present stage and plainly reiterated that the position of the allies was in no way changed.

Sir Edward declared that it was impossible to consider terms of peace without a previous agreement between the entente allies. Further, he expressed the decided opinion that the hostilities had not yet reached a stage where it was possible to talk of peace, especially as the German public was constantly being "fed with lies" by their ministers.

FIGHTING AT VERDUN

French Soldiers Strip to Waist and use Hand Grenades in Retaking Fort

Paris, May 25—With the Verdun operations now at their height and while the German troops are fighting desperately to hold the position which is their emperor's pride to have taken, France was thrilled with joy over the proportions and circumstances of the initial stages. Hard pressed by insistent drives of German troops in bulk on the left bank of the Meuse, Cailis, Neville and Petain sprung one on the master strokes of the war on the other side of the river.

Several divisions of the crown prince's army were engaged at Dead Man Hill. At the moment when it began to appear to the French that Dead Man Hill might fall, a sudden and terrific artillery fire opened, under Gen. Nivelle's orders, directed into the German positions on the right bank. Fort Douaumont was weaker than usual, and Nivelle's bombardment did not last long, for he did the work of a week in a single day, so well had he planned the coup.

Within 24 hours he gave his single word of orders to infantry and out they went. They charged in such numbers that they took fully two kilometres supporting Douaumont.

To the surprise of every one—some say even to the surprise of the troops —Gen. Nivelle announced that he had prepared for a similar assault and ordered his troops to climb the slopes to the plateau on which Douaumont is situated and retake the coveted positions. The right wing of the French contingent accepted this task and climbed into the dismantled fort that they had left three months before.

They poured in two streams, one from the west and the other from the south. They had left their rifles behind and each carried a full load of hand grenades. It was terrifically hot with no verbage, trees or water available and the French had stripped to the waist, as had their gunners during the previous hot day of artillery preparation.

Helmets and grenades were all they had use for, and thus equiped they scurried into cellar after cellar and tunnel after tunnel of the fortress. The enemy fell dead and wounded, and large numbers were taken prisoners.

VIRGINIANS WANT HUGHES

Leaders Say State's Vote Will Be Cast For the Jurist

HOPE FOR A DEADLOCK

Efforts of State Republicans to Capture Seat in Congress Held By Mr Flood

Virginia's delegation to the Republican National Convention at Chicago will support Associate Justice Charles E. Hughes for the Presidential nomination, according to an announcement in Washington yesterday by a group of G. O. P. leaders from the State which showed that 9 out of 10 of the G. O. P. rank and file favored the selection of Justice Hughes as the Presidential nominee.

Virginia's delegates to Chicago were elected without instructions, and it is expected that the entire delegation will follow the lead of Representative Slemp and National Committeeman Alvah H. Martin. It has been known for some time that Mr. Slemp feels that Justice Hughes is the strongest man in the Republican party in view of the present conditions, and in the Hitchcock-Slemp-Hughes correspondence he stated in a letter to the Associate Justice that he would be glad to support him if he were a candidate for the Presidential nomination.

Former Senator Elihu Root, of New York, and Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, have some personal following in Virginia, and it is possible that they will get one or two votes from the Virginia delegation on the first ballot, but on the second ballot the Virginians expect to give a solid vote for the Associate Justice if his name goes before the convention.

Republican leaders from Virginia in Washington yesterday announced that an aggressive Congressional campaign would be waged in their State this fall. The Republicans are planning to bring out State Senator Jordan, of Augusta, as an independent candidate against Representative H. D. Flood, and John Paul, of Harrisonburg, as an independent Republican candidate against Representative James Hay, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee. It was stated that, if George B. Keezell, of Harrisonburg, a Democrat consented to run as an independent against Mr. Hay, the Republicans would support him and Mr. Paul would not make the race.

Reports received by Representative Slemp from the Seventh district are to the effect that there is considerable discontent among the Democrats in Mr. Hay's district on account of the latter's conservative stand on military preparedness legislation. Mr. Hay has no opposition for renomination.

Roosevelt campaigners are making a last desperate effort to save the candidacy of their idol from a threatened Hughes stampede. They have unlimbered their heavy artillery and have gone into the final stage of the fight to win, whatever the cost.

Moreover, the favorite sons have made common cause with the Roosevelt people. They, too, have begun to realize that heroic measures must be resorted to, else the game at Chicago will be over in about two ballots.

BOND ISSUE OF $70,000

Lower Board of City Council Passes Amended Ordinance at Meeting Last Night

At a special meeting of the common council held last night the ordinance providing for a bond issue of $70,000, effective May 1, for the sum of $70,000, to run for a period of twenty-two years, as amended was adopted. These bonds bear interest at the rate of four per cent.

President Smith told council there had been some objection to the action of council on the first ordinance on the part of the attorneys representing the purchasers of the bonds.

Councilman Albert Bryan, chairman of the finance committee, told council that the attorneys representing the purchasers of the bonds desired to have twelve members of council present when the ordinance was adopted.

On motion of Councilman Bryan council then receded from its former action and the ordinance was again read and adopted.

A report from the joint committee on finance and general laws was then presented by Councilman Bryan in connection with the bond issue. The purchasers of fthe bonds, he stated, also desired council to confirm the adoption of the finance committee in selling the bonds at 93.06 and this was done.

On motion of Councilman Bendheim the petition of Randolph Ramer asking for certain improvements at house 1316 King street was taken from the table and adopted.

A resolution of Councilman Clinton S. Ballenger providing that the residents of the recently annexed territory be given one year from July in which to tap sewers was referred to the street committee.

There will be a meeting of the board of aldermen Saturday night to concur in the action of common council on the foregoing matters.

FINDS $14,000 IN CELLAR.

Widow of York Painter and Charity Agent Digs Up Bucket Filled With Money.

York, Pa., May 23. — Fourteen thousand dollars, principally in notes and certificates of deposit, were found in a paint bucket buried in a corner of the cellar of the home of Mrs. William H. Wholf, this city. The money was found by Mrs. Wholf, who carried out instructions given by her husband before he was killed three weeks ago by a Pennsylvania Railroad train.

Mr. Wholf, was a house painter and collector for the York Benevolent Association and told his wife that if he ever died suddenly she should go to a certain corner of the cellar and dig. Mrs. Wholf recalled these instructions and today she got a pick and shovel and went to the cellar. About a foot under the surface she uncovered a large paint bucket filled with money.

Mr. Wholf was at one time a prosperous painting contractor, but recently had been regarded as in but moderate circumstances. He was distributing funds to the poor of the city when killed, Corner Jones, on examining the body found money in nearly every pocket of his clothes.

BARRED FROM DISTRICT

Liquor Dealers Driven Out of Business by Prohibition Law Cannot Go There

Persons driven from the liquor business in Virginia by the law which puts this state in the dry column after November 1, it is stated, probably will find it impossible to enter the liquor business in Washington. Two persons from Virginia have learned from the excise board of the District of Columbia that they cannot engage in the business there and conduct a so-called mail-order business for the purpose of supplying their former patrons in Virginia and other dry states.

One applicant, it is stated, has done a thriving mail order business in one of the larger cities of the Old Dominion for a number of years, his patrons being chiefly residents of the several dry states in the south, and, realizing he would have to close his place in Virginia before November 1, it is stated, he concluded that Washington would be the nearest point from where he could make shipments.

The Virginian quickly learned the sentiment of the excise board. He was told that no encouragement would be given to any move that was calculated to make Washington a distributing point for dealers who want to make a specialty of filling orders in the dry states. A former liquor dealer in West Virginia also was told that it would be useless for him to apply for such a license.

Street Car Men's Organizer Declares Strikers Will Not Be Taken Back Into Fold

Rezin Orr, organizer for the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, stated in Washington yesterday afternoon, that the Washington and Old Dominion men, who declared a second strike two weeks ago while arbitration was in progress, will not be taken back into the national association. The national association denounced the men and revoked their charter the moment they ended arbitration by declaring a second strike.

"Are any negotiations in progress to return the Old Dominion men's charter?" Mr. Orr was asked.

"None whatever," he replied.

It is understood the National Association Street Car men and the American Federation of Labor, which has also withdrawn its support from the Old Dominion men, feel that the safety of thousands of laboring men throughout the country depends upon the integrity with which the national body keeps its agreements.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES.

The scenes in connection with the celebration of Confederate Memorial Day late yesterday afternoon were impressive and inspiring, much more than those of former occasions when speakers of national renown delivered orations and when there were greater influxes of visitors to the city. It was a genuine home affair—home organizations, home band, and home speaker. And everybody felt at home, all proud of the fact that they were Alexandrians and anxious to take part in the annual custom of rendering homage to those who have gone before — heroic men who offered up their lives upon their country's altar. Fifty-one years have passed away since the scenes at Appomattox, and, of course, the ranks of those who returned to their homes in 1865 are thin, but a corporal's guard of that number being now in the land of the living, but most of such were on hand. Some burdened with years were escorted to front seats at the platform, where they reviewed another generation—the High School Cadets—accoutred as were they in 1861 when the Alexandria companies composing part of the Army of Northern Virginia paraded the same thoroughfare. There was a juvenile company in Alexandria at that time, commanded by Capt. Frank Adams, subsequently a prosperous merchant in New York. The Indian Guard Band, which furnished music, also made a fine appearance.

Young and old were massed around the Monument, all anxious to witness the ceremonies and to hear the music, vocal and instrumental, and drink in all that was uttered.

Commander William A. Smoot, of R. E. Lee Camp, under the auspices of which the ceremonies were conducted, Rev. J. W. Duffey, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, also a veteran, and Samuel G. Brent, son of the late George W. Brent, a prominent officer of the Southern Confederacy, occupied the stand. Upon the assembalage being called to order Dr. Duffey delivered an invocation, after which Commander Smoot introduced the speaker, Mr. Brent, who delivered the oration. He uttered many things which were suggestive and sent a thrill through his audience, when he said a just cause is never lost. He made a new departure, too, when he referred to the living veterans of old Alexandria, calling some of them by name and telling of their heroism and self-denial during four long years they battled for principles guaranteed them by the fathers of the republic.

This was a happy thought of the speaker. Most of the orations on such occasions are on the lines of garnishing the tombs of those who have passed off the scene. While Mr. Brent paid such due homage, he also remembered the living.

"Seven Grecian cities mourned for Homer dead,
"Through which the living Homer begged his bread."

But few of the old guard mingled in this year's celebration. The ranks will necessarily be still further depleted by May 24, 1917 As Mr. Brent suggested, they should receive the honors due them while still living and moving among us.

ROOSEVELT. MEANS WAR.

Theodore Roosevelt means war. Every one who aids in his nomination or, if he should be nominated, shall aid in his election, will be working to get this country into war with Mexico and Germany. Mr. Roosevelt himself, and every one of his shouters, is attacking President Wilson because he has not engaged this country in war on both sides of the ocean.

There is no mistaking the fact. A lot of men called on Mr. Roosevelt this week and offered him the Republican nomination, and we presume they also offered him the election, and they might just as well have offered him the earth with a fence around it. A member of this precious company of fire-eaters was Professor Bingham, of Yale, who said:

"When I was in Peru as a representative of the National Geographic Society I found much that didn't please me. I found that the claim to American citizenship won no respect. We were even accused of stealing gold there, and our statement that we were members of the National Geographic Society apparently was no claim to consideration. They didn't have a very high opinion of Americans there."

The report of the interview says: "The Colonel clapped his hands vigorously" and said:

"Good for you! I can't tell you how much it pleases me to hear you talk like that. And it is proof of what I was told by Edmund Heller. He was in Peru, and he said that they believed there we were afraid to fight for our rights, or with Germany or Mexico, and that there is no respect for an American citizen."

The members of the National Geographic Society are not treated with sufficient respect in Peru because it is believed there that we are afraid to fight Germany and Mexico. Of course there is only one remedy for this state of things. To secure proper respect in Peru for members of the National Geographic Society we have got to prove that we are not afraid to fight Germany and Mexico, and we cannot possibly prove that except by getting into war with them.

As the Philadelphia Record observes the demand for war with Germany and Mexico is absolutely all therein behind the Roosevelt candidacy. We have been keeping the peace there is behind the Roosevelt candidacy. Peruvians do not pay sufficient homage to members of the National Geographic Society, because they believe Americans are afraid to fight Germany and Mexico. If Mr. Roosevelt were President and did not land us in two wars at once he would be no better than Mr. Wilson. If the Peruvians treat members of the National Geographic Society with scant respect because they think we are afraid to fight, the only remedy is to go to war, and teach the Peruvians that they had better give the sidewalk to members of the National Geographic Society. If Mr. Roosevelt is not pledged to involve this country in war with Germany and Mexico, then he is seeking the Republican nomination under false pretenses.

There is just as much Americanism and just as much patriotism in one candidate for the nomination, on either side, as there is in another. The pretense of Mr. Roosevelt that he alone among the possible nominees of both parties is a patriot and is imbued with the spirit of Americanism recalls the immortal phrase of Dr. Johnson regarding some other men who were prating of patriotism in order to promote their political prospects: "Patriotism is the last refuge of scoundrels."

LONGING FOR PEACE.

As is suggested by a cotemporary, never since the angels sang their song of good will at Bethlehem has the world received such glad tidings of great joy as will come to it on the day when the newspapers in every quarter of the globe can print on their front pages the beautiful word "Peace." One thing beyond dispute is that there is a universal longing for escape from the awful horror of this great international tragedy, which oppresses the souls of humane and thoughtful people in this country scarcely less heavily than it does those of its European victims. The man or the men who could be instrumental in bringing the war to a close would be blessed not only by this generation, but would hold for all future generations one of the highest places in the long roll of those who have rendered extraordinary service to mankind.

Germany has signified her willingness to bring the conflict to a close; but the Allies have apparently no intention of meeting her on the basis which she has indicated she is ready to consider. There is no telling how long the deadlock may continue.

Perhaps by late fall or by the Christmas season the dawn of peace may be discernible. Possibly it may come earlier. Everything seems to depend on Great Britain and Russia. If they are willing to meet Germany half way, then peace will begin to materialize. If they persist in the attitude of conquerors the road to Berlin will probably be long and bloody.

Because her grocer said she stole a cookie, worth one cent, Mrs. Pauline Mara, 62, unable to bear neighborhood gossip ended her life in Cleveland, Ohio, yesterday.

An idea of the tremendos losses being sustained by the Germans on the Verdun front is gained from the fact, that 39 long trains, filled with severely wounded German soldiers, passed through Luxemburg on Tuesday.

Lieut. James Vincent Rockwell, a civil engineer in the United States navy, who was in training as an aviator, at Pensacola, Fla., was instantly killed yesterday when a navy aeroplane he was piloting dived headforemost 150 feet into the gulf.

The American steamship Ventura, which has just arrived at Sydney, New South Wales, from San Francisco, reports that she picked up a wireless message from the station at Tuckerton, N. J., when 9,000 miles distant from that point, This is said to be a world's record.

President and Mrs. Wilson were the chief guests yesterday at the wedding of Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the White House physician ,and Miss Alice Gertrude Gordon, of Washington and New York, in the chapel of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church in New York.

Recent reports indicate that German submarine commanders are living up to their instructions to discontinue illegal methods of submarine warfare. Consul General Skinner at London reported a number of cases where merchant vessels were sunk but there is no indication of violation of international law

Hobart Williams, in addition to establishing a trust fund of $2,000,000 for the benefit of ten Illinois institutions, has conveyed to the University of Chicago the William Building, a downtown property, worth about $2,500,000. Mr. Williams also deeded to St. Luke's Hospital property valued at $200,000 and to the Y. M. C. A. property worth about $100,000.

Election of salaried officials, revision of the educational supervision system and the creation of a superannuated ministers' fund occupied the General Methodist Protestant Conference yesterday at Zanesville, Ohio. The Rev. George H. Miller, Steubenville, Ohio, was elected secretary of the new education board after a spirited battle that extended over from the afternoon session.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in session in Saratoga, N. Y., in making the assignments of bishops to their fields for the quadrennium yesterday, designated Dr. W. F. McDowell, of Chicago, for the Washington area, and he wil have supervision over the Baltimore, Wilmington, Central Pennsylvania and the Washington conferences. Bishop McDowell will make his residence in the national capital.

Henriette Holstein, the wife of a Koenigsbury farmer, was executed in Berlin, yesterday for the triple murder of her husband, daughter and stepson by arsenic. The execution was performed in the traditional manner by a headsman with a broadax. Two Berli women of the underworld who were recently convicted of the murder and robbery of a third woman, are in jail awaiting the infliction of the death penalty by beheading.

From a source which New York ship news reporters declared they have always found reliable, there came yesterday the remarkable announcement that within a few days New York would witness the arrival of a German super-submarine, inaugurating a passenger, mail and freight service between Germany and the United States. The submarine now said to be bound for American is 450 feet long and carries German mails, ten pasengers and a fifty-ton cargo of valuable freight.

The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of American yesterday at Atlantic City, N. J., adopted without debate a report from the committee on bills and overtures warning the New York and all other presbteries that the tenets of the church must be accepted by candidates for the ministry before they are ordained. This action, it is believed, ends further discussion in the present assembly of the alleged heresy question in which the New York Presbtery and Union Theological Seminary are involved.

When Chairman Padgett, of the House naval committee, yesterday reported the naval appropriation bill the largest budget for the national defense ever submitted to Congress in a single measure was presented. The bill for the first line of defense of the country carries a total of $241,000,000. This is an increase of $91,787,287 over last year's appropriation and is due almost entirely to the increase in the building program. The next most important item in the bill is the provision for the increase of the personnel by 13,000 men and an addition to the marine corps amounting to 3,079 enlisted men. The plan of the Senate is understood to be to add two monster battleships and increase the personnel by 20,000, so that all the ships that can be put into commission may be fully manned..

With approximately 600 of the 900 full-vote delegates who will be accredited to the Roanoke convention, elected, democratic leaders identified with both the Glass and James factions, after scanning the lists closely, admitted last night that the race between the Sixth District Representative and the Danville man for the national committee, has developed into a neck-and-neck affair, with the margin so close as to make unsafe any prediction as to the outcome.

In affirming a judgment of $25,000 given by the Virginia courts against the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway in favor of Asa P. Carnaham, fireman of the road, who lost his leg in a collision at Doswell, in 1913, the U. .S. Supreme Court held Monday that juries of less than 12 men required by common law may return verdicts in federal as well as state cases. The railroad had appealed from the original finding in the Carnaham case on the ground that the Virginia law which allowed a jury of but seven men to pass on the evidence, was not valid

The jury rendered a verdict of $7,000 in favor of the plaintiff in the case of O. C. .Bell vs. Virginia Railway Company last night in Christiansburg, The case had been on trial since May 19, and was the third time it was tried, both former verdicts having been revoked by the Supreme Court of Appeals. world, and we must appreciate the fact that war is merciless and without pity. It does not respect or recognize the rights of any if it can avoid it. The rights of neutrals are ignored, and no one is protected against it. In the present situation of affairs, every American should do his utmost to uphold the hands of the President of the United States in his efforts to maintain peace, and all of us should unite and make an earnest effort to evolve some plan by which the present war may be terminated and peace restored. We must not take the part of either side in this contest, but we must steadfastly maintain that the rights of the American citizens be secured to them on sea and on land.

If the United States expects or hopes to be the peace maker in this controversy, we must remember that in order to accomplish our good purpose, we must be unbiased and we must recognize that the men engaged in this conflict on either side believe that they are fighting for their rights, and we must respect their view point in this controversy, no matter what our own opinions may be.

One word more, and I am done. Let me say in the words of a Confederate soldier: "Come weel, come woe: with Virginia my lot is cast; beneath her soil repose the remains of those who gave me existence, and of my children, and when my own journey of life shall have been run, my prayer will be that I, too, may rest in her bosom."

At the conclusion of the exercises the veterans, escorted by the cadets marched to the Christ Church yard where the Alexandria Light Infantry fired a volley over the mound where rest a number of Confederate dead.

Captain John A. Reeves, superintendent of the United States National Cemetery sent a wreath which was placed on the mound and Mrs. Bruin of Atlanta sent the lilies which were placed at the base of the Confederate monument.

A SYMBOL OF HEALTH

The Pythagorians of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfils its ancient mission as a symbol of health. If you are troubled with indigestion, biliousness or constipation, get a package of these tablets from your druggist. You will be surprised at the quick relief which they afford.
